Tucked at the end of a quiet dead-end street, she keeps things calm out front-but out back? That's where she opens up. A freshly redone deck stretches out into a big backyard setup that actually gets used: playset, storage building, extra paved space, and room to breathe. Bring the kids, the dogs, the weekend projects-she's ready. Step inside and it's 9-foot ceilings almost everywhere, with vaulted lines that keep things feeling open without losing definition. The layout just makes sense. Three bedrooms plus a dedicated office (because working at the kitchen table is overrated), and storage in all the right places. The kitchen pulls her weight, too-granite counters, double ovens, a lazy Susan that actually earns her keep. Whether it's a weeknight scramble or a full spread, she handles it. And then there's the garage. Not just three cars-think front and back doors, so you can pull a boat or trailer straight through and park it on the concrete pad behind. It's the kind of setup people wish they had...until they see this one. Wood-burning fireplace for when it cools off. Updated finishes so you're not inheriting a to-do list. A layout that works with you, not against you. She's low drama, high function, and a little hard to forget. Come see if she feels like yours.
